

ISI Web of Knowledge and Endnote

JG 04/07

To import records from ISI Web of Knowledge databases (Arts and Humanities Citation Index, Science Citation index, and Social Sciences Citation Index) into Endnote, a search must be completed. After the desired results have been obtained follow these steps:

1. Mark the desired records by checking the beside its citation. You must use the “ADD TO MARK LIST” button for each page that contains records you want to export to Endnote. After all records for export have been marked, click the link for your marked records.

The screenshot displays the ISI Web of Knowledge search results interface. The main content area lists search results with checkboxes for selection. A red arrow points to the "ADD TO MARKED LIST" button in the right-hand sidebar, which is circled in red. The sidebar also shows "2 articles marked".

2. From the Output Options console select the button for ““EXPORT TO REFERENCE SOFTWARE,” then select “EXPORT” from the download page. This will launch your Endnote program and you will need to select the library to which you want to save these records.
