Horseshoe Scholar wins National Pharmacy Award

. . . . Amy Yanicak knew she wanted to be a pharmacist when she was just 16, working in her neighbor’s community pharmacy.
http://www.sph.sc.edu/news/yanicak_award.html

McNair Scholar and third year doctoral student wins Fulbright Grant to Colombia

. . . . Third-year marine science doctoral candidate Karly Miller has wanted to study the ocean for as long as she can remember.

McNair Scholar alumni Trey Gordner founder of a start-up company, discusses Columbia as ideal location

. . . . “I have friends who are trying to start companies in New York, Boston and out west, and, I mean, my expenses are just a fraction of theirs,” says Trey Gordner, founder of Koios, a browser extension that makes it easier to access public library materials.
http://www.nerdwallet.com/blog/small-business/small-business-columbia-sc-enjoy-low-costs/?utm_campaign=Feed%3A+NerdwalletCreditCardWatch+%28NerdWallet+Credit+Card+Watch%29&utm_medium=feed&utm_source=feedburner