Purpose
This document sets forth the University of South Carolina policy on salary overpayments to employees. In accordance with South Carolina Code of Laws Section 8-11-30, it is unlawful for a person to receive a salary from the State or any of its departments, which is not due. Any person who violates the provisions of this section may be subject to significant penalties, including conviction of a misdemeanor.

Definitions
Salary Overpayment: Payment or receipt of salary that is not due.

Policy Statement
University Campuses, Business Units and Departments must ensure timely and accurate communication for the authorization of salary payments and/or employee separation, which includes ensuring preparation of proper Human Resources (HR) forms and routing those forms to the Human Resources Operations and Services team as well as the Payroll Office to avoid overpayments.

A. Identification of Salary Overpayment
The Payroll Office, Human Resources Department, the Hiring Campus/Department or the employee, may identify a salary overpayment. The salary overpayment must be reported to the Payroll Office immediately upon identification of overpayment.

B. Notification of Employee and University Personnel

The Payroll Office is responsible for notifying the employee, the Department Chair or Director, Human Resources Operations and Services Director and Bursar’s Office of the overpayment.

C. Repayment

Repayment is due upon receipt of Notification. If repayment cannot be made immediately, please contact the Payroll department to discuss repayment options.

If payment is not received within 60 days and no payment plan has been established with the Payroll department, the university may begin collections procedures as authorized in FINA 4.14 Accounts Receivable – Collections of Past Due Accounts.
