PURPOSE

The University of South Carolina is committed to preparing for future staffing needs for the institution through regular and systematic succession planning.

DEFINITIONS

Pivotal Positions significantly impact essential functions and are critical for the ongoing success of university or unit operations. Loss of an incumbent in a pivotal position creates significant risk based on loss of specialized knowledge, skills, abilities, or critical relationships. Additional risk may exist when the position is difficult to fill based on market factors or a lack of qualified internal candidates.

Senior Executive positions include, but are not limited to, chancellors, vice chancellors, vice presidents, provosts, vice provosts, and deans.

Succession Planning is a process for identifying and developing employees for leadership and pivotal positions in the organization to reduce organizational risk associated with planned or unplanned departures.

POLICY STATEMENT

Vice Presidents and Chancellors will plan for the long-term staffing needs of their organizations through the preparation of succession plans.

Succession plans must be developed for all senior executive and pivotal positions that significantly impact the essential needs of the university or require specialized knowledge, skills, or abilities.

Succession plans should also be developed for positions where a vacancy would negatively affect a unit's ability to achieve its mission and goals.

Succession plans must be updated no less than every two years. Plans should be reviewed whenever there are substantive changes within a unit.

The plans will remain with the division/campus/school and are subject to audit.

The Division of Human Resources is available to assist departments with succession planning by providing consulting services.

The Division of Human Resources provides tools and services to assist departments in their development of succession plans. It is recommended that units use these tools to ensure consistency in succession planning efforts.
