

Hello University 101 Instructors!

As you're planning your fall syllabus, please consider including a THINKING GLOBALLY presentation for one of your class sessions.

THINKING GLOBALLY is a one hour presentation conducted by International Student Services in the Byrnes Building designed to facilitate interaction among U101 students and student volunteers in the Thinking Globally program which consist of both international students and study abroad returnees. The goal of these presentations is to help us all to "think globally". Volunteers in the program give short presentations on their home countries, cultures, experiences abroad, etc. which are followed by discussions moderated by a staff member from International Student Services. This presentation is a great way for U101 students to learn more about the international student population here at USC and opportunities to get involved in cross cultural activities and organizations on campus. In addition, students also receive a brief overview of study abroad opportunities and experiences in hopes that they might look into going abroad at some point during their college career.

This presentation has received great evaluations from U101 students. If you would like to participate, please send an email to me at battisce@mailbox.sc.edu and give the following information:

- Two to three possible dates for the presentation (The earliest date available is Sept. 15)
- Day and time your class meets
- Your contact information

We will get back with you promptly to confirm.

Thanks for you time and consideration
