The project is well underway. The following activities have taken place since May 2003:

- A new one-credit course, ENVS 310X – Environmental Activism: Recycling in the Residence Halls, has been placed in the curriculum on an experimental basis and has been advertised via emails and posters. Fourteen students are registered for the course for fall semester. Students meet once per week for two hours. The syllabus and course schedule can be found at www.winthrop.edu/envstudies/ENVS310Xhome.htm.
- The project director met with both the director and assistant director of Residence Life to discuss strategies and issues from their perspective.
- The project director met with all of the Residence Assistants and Residence Directors during their orientation week to explain the scope and intent of the project.
- The project director has met regularly with the Campus Recycling Committee to keep them apprised of activities and plans. Several of these individuals have been invited to come to hear presentations from students in the ENVS 310X class or to give presentations to the class on their piece of the recycling puzzle.
