

CAREERS IN LAW: PLAN YOUR PATH EARLY

Thinking about a career in law? Great choice — and yes, it's never too early to start planning. Law schools welcome students from all majors, not just Political Science or Criminal Justice. What matters most is developing strong communication, writing, and critical thinking skills — plus maintaining a solid GPA.

GET CONNECTED

- Check in with the Pre-Professional and Graduate School Advising early to make sure you're on track for law school applications.
- They can help you identify programs that fit your goals.
- Navigate the LSAT and application process.
- Join the Pre-Law Student Association to connect with peers and mentors.

EXPLORE AND PREPARE

- American Bar Association – Learn about the profession, accreditation, and ethics.
- ABA Career Center – Job and internship listings in the legal field.
- LSAC.org – Search schools, register for the LSAT, explore official prep tools, and manage applications.
- Khan Academy LSAT Prep – Free, official LSAT practice from the Law School Admission Council (LSAC).

EXPLORE RELATED CAREER PATHS

- Paralegal and legal assistant roles
- Compliance and policy analysis
- Mediation, nonprofit advocacy, or government work

QUICK ADVICE

Stay curious about the world, practice clear writing, and read often — those habits matter more than memorizing case law right now.