II. In an effort to extend the COVID-10 emergency course approval provision in place beyond the summer 2020 term, InDev presents A motion to amend a motion previously adopted by the Faculty Senate on April 1, 2020, by deleting the phrase "in the event that University courses will be delivered solely online":

Based on the extenuating circumstances caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, the Instructional Development (InDev) Committee, with input and concurrence from the Steering Committee of the UofSC Faculty Senate, proposes~~, in the event that University courses will be delivered solely online,~~ to extend approval for online course delivery to all face-to-face, hybrid and blended courses scheduled. This one-time exemption from the usual online course approval process is temporary in nature. Courses slated for online delivery after the COVID-19 emergency must be approved via the normal process before the course is taught online. Those faculty teaching courses under the terms of this exceptional provision: a) must submit to their unit head the course syllabus, to be delivered to InDev via the Office of Distributed Learning (ODL) prior to the first day of scheduled classes; and b) are encouraged to work collaboratively with the Center for Teaching Excellence (CTE) and/or ODL for course development and to ensure adherence to best practices in online teaching.
