

Love Collins, III, MBA

Biography

Love Collins, III has held vice president positions in advancement for the past twenty-four years while leading fundraising teams at well-known private and public academic institutions such as the University of Tennessee Health Science Center, Van Andel Research and Education Institute, Florida A&M University, Howard University and others. His experience includes service as Executive Director, Florida A&M University Foundation.

Collins earned a bachelor's degree in engineering from the prestigious U.S. Military Academy at West Point, NY and an MBA degree in finance from Emory University's Goizueta Business School. He received an honorable discharge and recognition for meritorious service in the U.S. Army's Infantry Branch as an airborne officer.

Collins served as past president of the Association of Fundraising Professionals Central Carolina Regional Chapter, where he was recognized as the Outstanding Fundraising Executive in 2009. He is married to Linda J. Collins and has two married children, Addison and Brennan.