Prepare for Your Future

The University of South Carolina Beaufort's Bachelor of Science in Human Services prepares students for employment within the helping professions and/or advance study in a variety of related academic disciplines.

In addition to Human Services courses, the program draws heavily from the disciplines of sociology and psychology. Students must complete three internship courses to gain a total of 360 hours of real-world experience in a supervised Human Service setting. This could include outreach in the areas of alcohol and drug abuse, disabilities and special needs, community and mental health, child abuse prevention and more.

Why should I complete a bachelor's degree in human services?

Human services professionals work in mental health settings and in community, residential care or institutional settings providing services such as leading a group, organizing an activity or offering individual counseling.

Why should I complete a degree online from UofSC Beaufort through Palmetto College?

The programs are developed and taught by the same professors who teach statewide in the nationally renowned UofSC system. As a Palmetto College student, you'll have access to the university's academic resources. And best of all, when you're finished with the program, you'll graduate with a degree from a top-notch, nationally recognized university!
