Greenwood Genetic Center, Summer Internship Program

Application deadline: November 15

The Greenwood Genetic Center, founded in 1974, is a nonprofit organization advancing the field of medical genetics and caring for families impacted by genetic disease and birth defects.

At its home campus in Greenwood, South Carolina, a talented team of physicians and scientists provides clinical genetic services, diagnostic laboratory testing, educational programs and resources, and research in the field of medical genetics. <http://www.ggc.org/>

The Greenwood Genetic Center offers a summer internship program for highly qualified college students. The program provides seven stipend positions each summer. The internship lasts 8-10 weeks. Preference is given to rising juniors and seniors; however all applications will be reviewed and considered. Potential candidates will be interviewed by a GGC faculty member. Candidates must have reliable transportation.
