Future Vision

The Fidelis Family Retreat

Securing property confers a multitude of advantages, notably enhancing our capacity to support veterans. It facilitates the expansion of programs and services tailored to their needs, fostering a more substantial and enduring impact. Furthermore, by providing a stable and recognizable location, we ensure a heightened level of comfort and familiarity for our esteemed veterans. The provision of an overnight and multi-day activity hub grants us the potential to offer an even more comprehensive range of services. In doing so, we establish an enriched, family-oriented environment that can enhance the well-being of our veterans. This newfound stability also opens up additional avenues for fundraising, as the property can be rented out to other groups during periods of non-use for FFR activities, bolstering our resources for the noble cause we champion.

fidelisfamilyretreat Happy Fidelis Family Friday! This Friday we are highlighting the Mohr family.

Stephen Mohr served in the Marine Corps. His daughter, Lily, describes what it’s like to have a parent come home from service. “I have got to see the effects of the wall that the veteran puts up as to not have their family see the effects of what they saw while they served,” said Lily. “My favorite thing about this nonprofit is that I get to witness these families grow closer and the veterans are able to reconnect with their families.”

We are so grateful to have you in the Fidelis Family!❤️
