Interpersonal Violence

Like all communities, the University of South Carolina experiences interpersonal violence, including sexual assault, harassment, stalking and relationship violence. The university strives to prevent interpersonal violence and support anyone who has been subjected to or impacted by it. We encourage you to seek help from the resources available to you. Together, we can stop sexual assault and other forms of interpersonal violence.

sc.edu/interpersonalviolence
Responsible employees at the university are required to report any incidents of interpersonal violence. This includes coaches, professors, advisors, etc.
DID YOU SAY INSTRUCTORS OR PROFESSORS?

For those graduate students who are also serving as GAs in the classroom setting, you can be considered a responsible employee regarding information you might learn about the students you oversee directly.

Responsible employees are those required to report sexual harassment or discrimination. A responsible employee includes any employee who:

- Has the authority to take action to redress the harassment (new regs); or
- Has the duty to report harassment or other types of misconduct to appropriate officials; or
- Someone a student could reasonably believe has this authority or responsibility
