

Graduate Civic Scholars Program

Graduate School 2020-2021

2020-2021 marks the sixth year of the University of South Carolina's Graduate Civic Scholars Program. To date, 68 students from 26 academic programs have participated. This year's Scholars come from seven colleges: Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering and Computing, Information and Communications, Medicine, Public Health and Social Work.

Brandi Anderson
College of Social Work

Ellie Cooper
Communication Sciences
and Disorders

Quintavis Cureton
Educational Leadership
and Policies

Jingtong Dou
Educational Leadership
and Policies

Wenyu Guo
Instruction and
Teacher Education

Bryan Holloman
Pathology, Microbiology,
and Immunology

Anna Howard
Language and Literacy

Shudan Huang
Journalism and Mass
Communications

Francis Hutchful
Journalism and Mass
Communications

Sara Pound
Educational Studies-
Special Education

Hannah Quire
Educational Leadership
and Policies

Clint Saidy
Mechanical Engineering

Steve Wahle
College of Social Work

Graduate School

Dr. Breanne Grace
College of Social Work
Faculty Co-Director

Dr. Allison Marsh
History
Faculty Co-Director

WORD CLOUD OF RESEARCH INTERESTS

ABOUT THE GRADUATE CIVIC SCHOLARS PROGRAM

The GCSP emphasizes the importance of collaboration between university and community partners and cohort-based professional development. Scholars in this interdisciplinary program will present their findings at Discover USC in April 2021 and receive a transcript notation upon completion of the program.

The GCSP, begun in 2015, is organized by the Graduate School in cooperation with the Career Center, Office of the Vice President for Research, Office of Student Engagement, Graduate Student Association, and Center for Teaching Excellence. Professors Allison Marsh (History) and Breanne Grace (College of Social Work) serve as Faculty Directors for 2020-2021.

For more information, contact Dr. Allison Marsh at marsha@mailbox.sc.edu