

University of South Carolina

Assistant Professor Position in Communication Sciences & Disorders

The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders, housed within the Arnold School of Public Health at the University of South Carolina, has a 9-month, tenure-track assistant professor position available beginning as early as August, 2015. Qualified applicants will have a PhD in Communication Sciences & Disorders or related field. Responsibilities include conducting research, teaching, and service. Preferred areas of research include traumatic brain injury, dysphagia, voice, autism, or motor speech disorders. Preference will be given to applicants with a strong record or promise of extramural funding and those with the Certificate of Clinical Competence from the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (CCC-SLP).

The Department has strong ties within the Arnold School of Public Health, the USC Institute for Mind and Brain, the McCausland Center for Brain Imaging, Palmetto Health hospital, and the local VA hospital. It currently has 25 full-time faculty and offers two CAA-accredited master's degree programs (on-campus and distance-learning) and a PhD program.

The University of South Carolina has a Carnegie Foundation ranking of "very high research activity." Applications (including a personal statement, descriptions of research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, and electronic contact information for three references) should be sent by email to:

Julius Fridriksson, PhD, Search Committee Chair
Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders
University of South Carolina
Keenan Building, Room 334
Columbia, SC 29201
jfridrik@sc.edu

For more information about the Department, visit our web site at:
<http://sc.edu/publichealth>

Review of applications will begin on November 20, 2015. The University of South Carolina is an affirmative action, equal opportunity institution. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply; our many minority and female students value role models.

The University of South Carolina has a generous family leave policy and is responsive to the needs of dual career couples.

Columbia, SC enjoys more than 300 days of sunshine annually and has ready access to both beaches and mountains. It hosts historical and cultural attractions, festivals, performing arts and sporting events, and has parks and outdoor recreation including the Congaree National Park and 50,000 acre Lake Murray.