

University of South Carolina

Clinical Assistant Professor Position in Communication Sciences & Disorders

The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders, housed within the Arnold School of Public Health at the University of South Carolina, has a 12-month, non-tenure track clinical assistant professor position available beginning in October 2015. Qualified applicants will have a clinical doctorate in Audiology (AuD).

Responsibilities include but are not limited to programming of hearing aids and cochlear implants, troubleshooting of hearing aids, cochlear implants, and other assistive listening devices, aural rehabilitation, comprehensive diagnostic hearing evaluations, including electrophysiologic measures, supervision of speech-language pathology students, and coordination of care as part of the cochlear implant team.

The Department has a strong Cochlear Implant Program with ties to local and state-wide cochlear implant referral agencies. It currently has 23 full-time faculty and offers two CAA-accredited master's degree programs (on-campus and distance-learning) and a PhD program. The University of South Carolina has a Carnegie Foundation ranking of "very high research activity."

Applications (including a personal statement, descriptions of clinical experiences, curriculum vitae, and electronic contact information for three references) should be sent by email to: Jason Wigand, AuD, CCC- A, Search Committee Chair
Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders
University of South Carolina, Keenan Building, Room 309
Columbia, SC 29208
jwigand@mailbox.sc.edu.

For more information about the Department, visit our web site at:

<http://sc.edu/publichealth>

Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2015.

The University of South Carolina is an affirmative action, equal opportunity institution. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply; our many minority and female students value role models.

The University of South Carolina has a generous family leave policy and is responsive to the needs of dual career couples.

Columbia, SC enjoys more than 300 days of sunshine annually and has ready access to both beaches and mountains. It hosts historical and cultural attractions, festivals, performing arts and sporting events, and has parks and outdoor recreation including the Congaree National Park and 50,000 acre Lake Murray.